TUDAYLILIES

FEB 20 AND OTHER

LONG BLOOMING HEMEROCALLIS

A cross of neglected old-timers came up with a radical advancement of which we are justly proud. The story appeared in The Hemerocallis Society 1954 Yearbook and mention was made in Ben Arthur Davis' "Daylilies and How to Grow Them". Contemporary breeders are already using them and the next ten years should see far greater advances than were thought possible a decade ago.

TUDAYLILIES provide double display value in or out of the garden, and, generally, twice a year! Their flowers open during daylight and not only remain open ALL night but all NEXT day, all NEXT NIGHT, and close on the SECOND DAY (48 hours) after opening! No Hemerocallis blooms earlier, none later when established.

TUDAYLILIES combine all that is desirable in Hemerocallis — fragrance, remontance, longevity of blooms, sub-zero hardiness, hybrid vigor AND adaptability for arrangements.

TUDAYLILIES

are true hybrids, and, excepting DUPLICATE, are sister seedlings from a cross of H. Middendorfii X H. minor. Descriptions are based upon performance here of established plants, and proper allowances should be considered for your locality. All are registered by American Hemerocallis Society.

ADVANCE (1953) Dor. 38". Deep golden yellow, slightly recurved 4½" flowers with medium-narrow petals and sepals, with some brown on the outside. Fragrant, and open 48 hours. May-June and Sept. to freezing. $8.50 each.

DUPLICATE (1956) Dor. 34". Golden yellow fragrant 3¾" flowers in May-June and again Sept. to freezing. Parentage: H. flava X H. Middendorfii. Duplication of results inspired the name. Remains open 48 hours. $10.00 each.

MARK TWAIN (1956) Dor. 35". Golden yellow 3½" fragrant flowers with medium-wide petals and sepals, slightly recurved. Remains open 48 hours. May-June and Sept. to freezing. $8.50 each.

OOLONG (1956) Dor. 38". Orange-yellow fragrant 4" flowers, slightly recurved. Remains open 48 hours. An occasional flower lasts three days, hence the name. May-June and Sept. to freezing. $10.00 each.

REPEATER (1952) Dor. 43". Golden yellow slightly recurved flowers with petals, sepals and size like ADVANCE, but lighter color. Remains open 48 hours. May-June and Sept. to freezing. $8.50 each.

TUDAY (1952) Dor. 36". Orange-yellow, broad petaled, slightly crinkled 3½" fragrant flowers. High-branched, the numerous clusters of trumpet-like blooms seem to float in the air. Remains open 48 hours. May-June and Sept. to freezing. $8.50 each.

TUDOR (1953) Dor. 38". Orange-yellow fragrant 4½" flowers, slightly recurved. Petals and sepals intermediate, neither wide nor narrow. Remains open 48 hours. May-June and Sept. to freezing. $8.50 each.

DAYDREAM SERIES

The only garden daylily I had when my TUDAY-LILIES indicated their future importance was a day-blooming seedling of CALYPSO. Tall, pale yellow, fragrant, it carried a fortunate combination of genes and bloomed a few weeks later. For the record, it was named CALIPH, and I used it to bridge the gap between the very early TUDAY-LILIES and the newer colors which bloomed much later. The first cross, CALIPH X REPEATER, produced this series of 24-hour bloomers, with generally larger plants and flowers in a wider range of hues. Here are new horizons for other daydreamers:

BEAUTIFUL DREAMER (1956) Dor. 38". Light yellow fragrant 4" flowers with wide petals and narrow sepals, tinged green on the outside. Remains open 24 hours. May-June. $5.00 each.

DREAM CASTLE (1956) Dor. 48". Orange-yellow fragrant 4½" flowers with narrow petals and sepals. Remains open 24 hours. June-July. $5.00 each.

DREAM IMAGE (1956) Dor. 44". Pale yellow fragrant 4" flowers with narrow petals and sepals. Remains open 24 hours. June-July. $5.00 each.

DREAMLAND (1956) Dor. 46". Pale yellow fragrant 4" flowers with wide petals and narrow sepals, tinged green and brown on the outside. Remains open 24 hours. Proliferates. June-July. $5.00 each.

We issue an occasional list of rare Gladiolus species and hybrids, the longest we ever saw. It offers sub-zero hardy spring bloomers, half hardy summer and fall bloomers, and tender winter-blooming species. The kind you read about in books but cannot find in commerce, and some you never even heard about!

Our Gladiolus customers receive this list free as issued. If you have not purchased Gladiolus from me in the past few years and want this comprehensive list, check here:

FOR YOUR GUIDANCE

ORDERS filled in rotation as received and as stocks permit. Requests for special shipping dates honored during season.

SHIPMENTS made from about April 10 to August 31. Later orders will be held for spring delivery. None sent outside U.S. at present.

TERMS, cash with order. No discounts, none wholesale. No credit extended and no bills rendered. If air delivery is desired, add $1.00 per plant. Otherwise we prepay postage.

PLANTING RECOMMENDATIONS—Spring or early summer in locations where ground freezes. In the south, any time during above shipping season.

HEMEROCALLIS SEEDS

All my breeders have a habit of setting seed without my assistance. If you care nothing about names and want mass beauty economically, this is the way to get it. This mixture contains self-set seeds from my TUDAYLILIES, from their descendants, and from a mighty fine collection of specially selected breeders. Packet of 20 seeds, with growing instructions, $1.00.
